INTERMENT OF ROBT. L. HOGUE

With services beautifully impressive and amid a wealth of floral tributes bespeaking their silent messages of love and condolence, Robert L. Hogue, well known mining engineer, and son-in-law of Mrs. A. Steadman, of 725 East Fifth street, was laid at rest yesterday afternoon in Pomona cemetery, says the Pomona Cal. Bulletin. A large number of friends and relatives gathered at the undertaking parlors where a tender message of comfort and inspiration was delivered by Rev. Walter C. Buckner, pastor of the First Methodist church.

The body of Mr. Hogue accompanied by his wife, who was formerly Miss Helen Steadman, a popular Pomona girl, and James Shea, a close friend of Mr. and Mrs. Hogue, arrived yesterday from Tonopah. The body was immediately taken to the undertaking parlors where all arrangements had been made for the funeral. Here, almost hidden by the beautiful blossoms, the steel gray casket awaited the services.

The sad circumstances surrounding the untimely death of Mr. Hogue are particularly pathetic and have caused the hearts of the host of friends in and about Pomona to go out in tenderest sympathy to the bereaved ones.

In the rough and rugged mining country Mr. Hogue has won his way deep into the hearts of his fellow men and the news of his injury and later of his death, spread rapidly throughout the surrounding country. It was then that there came to the surface among those true hearted mining men, that brand of fellowship and brotherly love that does more than all else to lighten the burden of grief. They came forward to a man and their services so willingly given proved a tribute that will ever be remembered by the widow.

At the services yesterday Mrs. Jesse Edmonds sang "Resignation" and a quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. Edmonds, Miss Heathorn and Mr. Verity sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." The beautiful music added much to the impressiveness of the service. The pall bearers were Messrs. J. Roy Campbell, Earl Wilkinson, Fred Brown, R. L. Driscoll, J. Carson Bowen and W. B. Piles of Yerba Linda.

Noticeable among the floral tributes was a reproduction of a miner's pick in white carnations and roses, sent by the mining men with whom the deceased had been associated in his work.
